E. Answer the following questions.

1. What is a mountain range? Give an example.

→ When mountains are joined together in a chain it is known as a mountain range.

2. Write two or three sentences to explain how rivers are formed.

→ Rivers are large bodies of water that flow from a high land to a lower land, continuously. They flow along with streams, which have less water than rivers, contain a large part of the water found on land.

3. What is a plain?

→ A stretch of low, flat land or almost flat land is called a plain.

4. How is a plain formed?

→ A plain is formed when rivers bring down mud and soil from the mountains.

5. What is a desert?

→ A desert is a dry land which receives little or no rainfall year after year.
